    1. Create a report
    2. Add and edit sections
    3. Add headers and footers
4. Review your work
5. Run your report

6. Scale your reports
7. Troubleshooting
8. More options

Before you begin

- You need permission to create custom sections, headers, footers, and table themes.

1. Plan your report

Before you dive in, it's helpful to plan your report's content and structure. This will make the creation process much smoother.

Get inspired

Review a sample report

Look at a sample report to understand the structure and content possibilities. While you may not use every part of the sample, it can give you an idea of what you can include or create.

Explore the section template library

Addepar offers pre-built sections called section templates. You can add these sections to your report and customize them based on your needs. To view the library: Go to Firm Administration > Report settings > Section templates.

Common section templates include:

- Cover page
- Performance overview
- Performance details
- Transaction details
- Disclosures

Outline your report

Consider the information flow of your report and create a simple outline. Imagine each section as a chapter in a story you're telling your client.

Start by referencing a common report you use, like a quarterly performance report. Then, craft your report's structure.

Example report structure:

- Section 1: Start broad, giving your overall market commentary.
- Section 2: Cover general portfolio insights. You might connect the portfolio's performance to your market commentary.
- Section 3: Transition into asset allocation data to address specific client information.
- And so on.

Best practices:

- Keep sections focused. It's usually better to have more short sections that focus on a single topic than fewer, denser sections.
- Use section templates. Section templates (built-in or new) let you scale your reports and maintain consistency.

2. Set your settings (optional)

Choose your global report settings now to save time later. In Firm Administration, you can set default settings like paper size and table themes. You can also override these settings at the section level.

We recommend adjusting these settings:

- Table themes
- General
  - Paper size

- PDF visibility
- Dynamic disclosures
- Report printing
- Account number display

3. Build your report

When you create a report, you'll generate a blank canvas to fill with sections and portfolio data.

Create a report

1. Go to Analysis & Reporting > Search a portfolio.
2. On the Reports tab, click Create report.
3. Enter a name and choose a time period.
4. Select portfolios to affiliate with the report.
5. Click Save.

A new window will open the Report Editor. This is where you'll add content to your report, starting with a section template.

Add and edit sections

Start with a pre-built section template.

Add a section template

1. In the Report Editor, click the + sign in the lower left-hand corner of the outline panel.
2. Search for a template using the name "Addepar -". Or browse the list of templates.
3. Select a template to add it to the bottom of the report.

4. Drag and drop the section in the outline panel to where you want it to appear in the report.
5. Click Save.

Once added, the section template will populate data from the affiliated portfolio.

Note: In the outline panel, you may see a link or line through the name of an added section template.

- Link: This means the page is linked to a section template. You'll need to unlink it to make changes to the template.
- Line through the name: This means the page will be hidden in the PDF version of the report.

Edit a section template

You can modify section templates to suit your specific needs. When editing, note whether it's linked to other reports. If so, your changes will appear in all the other reports that include the template.

1. In the right-side panel, click Edit Template to open in the Section Template Editor.
2. In the Section Template Editor:
   - Click the Settings gear icon to change the title, description, access, and paper size.
   - Use the toolbar to add, edit, or remove elements like tables, charts, textboxes, and media.
   - Use the right-side panel to adjust table details, change formatting, and arrange content.
3. When you're done editing, click Save.

Add a split section

Use a split section when you want to repeat a section but adjust the information by attribute.

For example, let’s say you want to show the performance of each asset class within the portfolio. You can split the “asset class” attribute into sections. That way, you’ll have one for fixed income, one for equities, one for alternatives, and so on.

To split a section:

1. In the Report Editor, click a section to open the right-side panel.
2. In the right-side panel, scroll to Split attribute.

3. Choose an attribute and click Save.

Note: The report won't run if a section is split into more than 249 subsections.

Unlink a section template

If you need to change a section in just one report, you can unlink it. This lets you customize that specific section. Just know, it also means those changes won't automatically appear in other reports.

1. In the Report Editor, click a section in the outline panel with a link icon.
2. In the right-side panel, click Unlink.
3. Click Save.

Create a custom section

Sometimes you'll need a section that doesn't already exist. This is common when your client needs something specific. In those cases, you can create a section from scratch.

1. In the Report Editor, click the + sign in the lower left-hand corner of the outline panel.
2. Under Report Page or Custom Section, choose a blank page or section.
3. Drag and drop the section in the outline panel to where you want it to appear in the report.
4. Click Save.

Note: You can save custom sections to the section template library.

Add headers and footers

Headers and footers are like signposts. They help your clients find their way around a report. You can also use them for your firm's logo and branding to give your reports a professional touch.

1. In the Report Editor's right-side panel, check the box for Header and/or Footer.
2. Select a header or footer from the dropdown menu. Or create a new one.

3. Choose where to show the header or footer
    1. To use them in the entire report, click Apply to All Sections.
    2. For specific sections only, click Apply to All Sections first. Then, uncheck the boxes where you don't want them.
4. Click Save.

Worth mentioning

- Headers and footers are assigned firm or team access.
- Adding images can increase the size of headers and footers—and file size.
- You can require headers and footers and edit their content.

4. Review your work

Once you've added and styled all your content, it's important to check your work for any errors. Carefully review your report for:

- Blank or missing pages from section templates
- Table data or values that don't match your Analysis views
- Missing securities
- Unlinked sections
- Unexpected numbers
- Branding or styling errors

5. Run your report

Once you've checked your work, it's time to run your report. Running a report will generate a PDF version you can download and email to your clients.

1. In the Report Editor, click Run in the toolbar.

2. Choose a time period and relevant portfolio(s).
3. If applicable, select a Portal publishing option and related settings.
4. Click Run.
    1. Tip: Open the Run menu and click Run and download to do both at the same time.

After running, you'll be taken to the Generated PDFs tab. Look for a green checkmark in the Status column—that means your PDF is ready to download or publish to the Portal.

Worth mentioning

- You can run reports from Analysis & Reporting.
- If you need to run a report on a regular cadence, you can schedule it to run automatically.
- You can run reports for multiple portfolios at the same time.

6. Scale your reports

Our tools make it easy to create reports quickly and efficiently for all your clients. Here are some ways to save time and effort:

- Use section templates to simplify report creation and ensure consistency.
- Organize your clients into groups for easier report generation.
- Schedule reports to run and generate recurring reports.
- Use features that automatically update your reports:
    - Hide sections
    - Hide empty columns
    - Automatic date ranges
- Run reports for multiple portfolios at once without making any changes.
- Save your custom sections to the template library for quick reuse.

Troubleshooting

Getting stuck? Find the answers you need to fix common issues with reporting.

- Why doesn't my table data match my analysis views?
- When I edit a table, all my data is missing.
- Why can't I delete a section template?
- Why did my report fail to run?
- Why won't my headers and/or footers save?
